SPEAKERS

Keary Cheney discovered she had type 1 diabetes after a trip to Uganda to adopt her son, Oliver. She was so ill, she had to return to the United States while her husband, Justin, stayed in Uganda. While there, Justin heard of a little girl with type 1 diabetes who was in need of a foster family. Once Keary was well, she traveled back to Uganda to help Justin bring Oliver and the little girl – their daughter, Zola – home with them. Since then, Keary and her family have been actively inspiring the diabetes community with their story.

Kerri Sparling is a writer who has lived with type 1 diabetes for 30 years. She is the creator of "Six Until Me," one of the first and most widely read diabetes patient blogs. Her first book, "Balancing Diabetes," looks at type 1 diabetes in the context of real life, something Kerri knows well after living with it through childhood, adolescence, college, pregnancy and parenting. Kerri aims to spread hope through storytelling.
